

Nicole Denise Perkins McLaughlin began writing in the seventh grade and has poems published in journals and anthologies. She received an Honorable Mention in the Writer's Digest 2000 writing competition for her stage play script Harlem Renaissance.

She received her BA in Theater from Florida A&M University. Nicole spent two seasons as the Managing Director of The Smithsonian Associates Discovery Theater for Children.

In 2004, she started Azreal Publishing, dedicated to publishing culturally diverse Christian books for children, teens, and young adults. To date, she has two self-published children's books.